(n) Opportunity for verbal updates from Area Community Planning Group Partners

Niall Colthart, Islay Community Council

Niall Colthart highlighted that one of the main issues on Islay was transport links, with ferry availability causing serious concern. He noted that the Islay Communities Ferry Group was working with Caledonian MacBrayne in relation to this.

Niall also advised that the availability of workers, and particularly key workers, was causing concern. He noted that this was being affected by the lack of affordable accommodation on the island. He advised that Islay Airport had put in place two accommodation pods to house their staff, and were now making these available for health and social care workers during May to allow agency staff to be housed on the island.

Tracy Robertson, Fyne Homes

Tracy advised that she was a part of the steering group for the Home Argyll Partnership. She noted that she was able to assist with any queries for Registered Social Landlords in the area, and could take these forward for a response or signpost people appropriately.

Heather Thomas-Smith, Argyll and the Isles Tourism Co-operative (AITC)

Heather Thomas-Smith provided information in relation to AITC's recent annual summit, which had marked their 10 year anniversary. She also provided details of the new Above and Below partnership, and the recent AITC Roadshow event.

Heather noted that the main message from recent events had been that businesses were struggling with staffing, and this was affecting the services that they could provide. She also highlighted the impact of the increasing cost of fuel. She advised that work was ongoing to bring people together to collaborate on potential solutions to these issues, and invited anyone who may wish to be involved in this to get in touch with her.

6. COMMUNITY FOCUS

(a) Police Scotland Fraud Discussion

The Group considered a presentation by PC Laura Evans, Police Scotland. The presentation provided an overview of the work being undertaken by Police Scotland to highlight and reduce incidents of fraud.

Background information was provided around fraud and the increase in incidences of fraud since the beginning of the Covid-19 pandemic. PC Evans also highlighted the impact that being a victim of fraud could have on individuals, and emphasised that anyone could be a victim of fraud.

PC Evans provided further information about the various methods that were being used by fraudsters; the work which was being undertaken by Police Scotland to combat the increase in fraud activity; and the ways in which partners could assist to prevent fraud within their local communities. She provided examples of the ways in which the community and partner organisations had assisted in sharing information, and noted that partners had also assisted with fitting call blockers across the area. She particularly highlighted the weekly 'Spotlight on Scams' articles in the local press, and the sharing of cyber advice leaflets alongside refurbished mobile devices and laptops as part of schemes to improve digital access during the pandemic.

PC Evans encouraged people to sign up to Neighbourhood Watch Scotland and to complete the free Friends Against Scams training which was available. She advised that she would upload a copy of the presentation, and links to all relevant resources, to the Group's Basecamp site following the meeting. She noted that local Councillors could undertake training to become a 'Scam Champion', and highlighted the importance of organisations being aware of fraud prevention information. It was noted that some vulnerable people did not report fraud to Police Scotland out of fear of embarrassment or losing their independence. Councillor Armour thanked PC Evans for her informative presentation, and noted that it was very important for this information to be shared widely.

PC Evans advised that she would be happy to attend face-to-face events to discuss fraud prevention, and encouraged partners to get in touch with her if this was of interest.

Valerie Nimmo enquired about the placement of a 'Friendship Bench' in Campbeltown. PC Evans advised that it was her understanding that the Council would be putting in place a concrete base for the bench imminently.

7. FUEL POVERTY - ARGYLL, LOMOND AND THE ISLES ENERGY AGENCY (ALI ENERGY)

The Group considered a presentation by Lynda Mitchell, ALIEnergy, in relation to the ALIEnergy Affordable Warmth Service. The presentation provided background information in relation to ALIEnergy, their aims, their staff, and the geographic area covered by the Affordable Warmth Advice Service.

The presentation also provided statistical information in relation to fuel poverty across Scotland; a breakdown of the percentages of people suffering from fuel poverty by local authority region; examples of fuel poverty in everyday life; examples of how the energy advice process could assist people to access support; and contact details for the Affordable Warmth Team. Further information was provided around how ALIEnergy were able to measure the impact of the support provided to clients, both new and existing. Recent examples were also provided of how ALIEnergy had been able to assist clients in accessing support through various funds. The presentation also included information around ALIEnergy's social media channels, as well as contacts details for referrals or client enquiries.

Discussion took place around the higher rates of fuel poverty in areas where the most renewable energy was produced. Valerie Nimmo noted that Kintyre produced a lot of renewable energy but did not see any benefit in terms of electricity cost, and suggested that it could be beneficial to open a dialogue with renewable energy companies around this. Lynda advised that, in her role as Chair of Energy Action Scotland, she was aware that this was a problem that was prevalent across a number of areas in Scotland and lobbying was ongoing. She noted that many windfarms were likely to be owned by different developers, and therefore it was difficult to reach a consensus with all parties. She advised that many windfarm operators were likely to offer some kind of community benefit, however overall it was a huge issue affecting many areas in Scotland. She encouraged people to continue to vocalise their concerns around this, to encourage action to be taken.

Jennifer Dryden agreed to contact Lynda to discuss possible future links between the Community Link Worker service and ALIEnergy following the meeting.

Decision

The Mid Argyll, Kintyre and the Islands Area Community Planning Group considered and noted the information provided.

8. PARTNER UPDATES

(a) Caledonian MacBrayne Update

The Group considered a verbal update from Don McKillop, Caledonian MacBrayne (CalMac). He provided an update on the commencement of the Summer timetable following a difficult winter period as a result of bad weather and technical challenges with the fleet across the network. He also noted that there had been a challenging dry dock period, with extended durations for many vessels.

Don advised that the MV Caledonian Isles had recently been withdrawn from service due to a technical issue, and this had resulted in delays to the start of the Campbeltown - Ardrossan service. He noted that specialist engineers were working on diagnosing the issue, and it was hoped that a further update on its return to service would be available soon. He confirmed that he would keep in close contact with Councillor Armour in relation to this as the representative of the Campbeltown Ferry Committee, and noted that this delay had followed a challenging few years for the Campbeltown – Ardrossan service.

Don also provided an update on the installation of temporary toilet facilities at Claonaig; the construction of permanent toilet facilities in Claonaig over the Summer; the availability of shore support in Campbeltown and Claonaig as required; the impact of vessel issues on the Tarbert - Portavadie route over the winter period, due to the need to prioritise the Tarbert - Lochranza service for the transport of dangerous goods; the impact of Covid-19 on crew availability over the winter period; the operation of two vessels on the Kennacraig – Islay service in anticipation of a busy season; and the adoption of Covid-19 guidance reflecting that of the Scottish Government, which encouraged people to wear masks on board vessels and not to travel when feeling unwell.

Councillor Armour advised that he had not been surprised that the Campbeltown – Ardrossan service had not started as planned, however he was slightly more encouraged at the news that the delay could be limited to one week. He noted that he hoped for good news on this shortly and that this would be a less problematic season than had been the case in recent years. He raised concerns about a businessman who had been told that he could not book his white van on to the ferry to Islay, despite there being remaining space reserved for cars. Don confirmed that this should not be the case, and he would be happy for his contact details to be passed on to the businessman concerned to investigate this.

Niall Colthart advised that he was pleased to hear that CalMac were recognising the challenges faced for Islay in terms of ferry capacity, and he understood that they were in close contact with the Islay Ferry Committee in relation to this. Don confirmed that CalMac were liaising with Transport Scotland and the Islay Ferry Committee around the possibility of operating additional services, and noted that Islay McEachern and Jim Porteous had been very successful in bringing together key parties to address the challenges faced. He advised that all options would be explored, subject to the ability of the current fleet to meet demands, while waiting for the completion of new vessels for the Islay route.

Niall noted his concerns about proposed charges for people making changes to bookings, and the potential for island communities to be unduly penalised because of this. He advised that this would affect booking flexibility for people living on islands and enquired about whether these charges would also be applicable to commercial operators. Don advised that this was purely a consultation at this time, and he sympathised with the concerns that had been raised. He advised that meetings were being held to ascertain feedback in relation to these proposals, which were hoped to reduce the number of ‘no-show’ bookings on busy sailings.

Lauren Worrell advised that farmers had reported difficulties in getting fuel on Arran last week, and enquired as to whether there were plans to prioritise bookings for the transport of essential supplies during times of difficulty. Don advised that he would enquire about this following the meeting, as his colleague was responsible for the Arran service, however he was surprised that fuel deliveries would have been impacted by the withdrawal of the MV Caledonian Isles as he did not believe that this vessel would be used for transporting fuel. He noted that, on occasion, media reports could prompt increased purchases if people were concerned about potential shortages. He confirmed that although CalMac operated on a first-come, first-serve booking basis, opportunities were provided to suppliers to block-book slots for the transportation of essential goods and services in advance. He noted that, where required, it was common practice for CalMac to prioritise essential goods and services during periods of disruption.

Decision

The Mid Argyll, Kintyre and the Islands Area Community Planning Group considered and noted the information provided.

9. CLIMATE CHANGE

(a) Minutes of the Climate Change Working Group meeting held on Thursday, 17 February 2022

He advised that the Working Group were concentrating their efforts on finding funding to create a Climate Change Project Officer post, to carry out the actions which had been identified – namely developing an Action Plan for Climate Change Adaptation, Mitigation and Engagement for Argyll and Bute. He noted that putting in place funding and governance systems was likely to dominate the work of the Working Group in the near future, and invited the Group to consider any potential sources of funding which could be utilised for the Climate Change Project Officer post.
