

To whom it concerns

With reference to the email of 15/02/2024 for more information on the site re our appeal for a farmhouse to be built at Ballyhaugh, Isle of Coll, PA78 6TB, I attach a series of photographs of soil sampling from the site (see Hole 3 photo and photo 7) and images of wind speeds for the last three years.

One of the photographs (No 8) is of the location identified in the local development plan. As you can see it is very boggy and occupies a dip in the ground, which would require considerable infill.

Our reasons for selecting the location are as follows:

- close proximity to existing fank/animal pens for sheep/cattle
- adjacent to existing (rough) track
- out of sight of Project Trust offices (which has panoramic windows) and accompanying wind turbines
- close to electricity supplies and main road
- the location would blend well in the landscape and not be obtrusive

As I'm sure you're aware, NatureScot have confirmed that there are none of the identified plant species for the SSSI in the site area. An archaeologist would be appointed to assist any ground excavation.

Just now, we have a hypothermic new-born calf in our kitchen, which we are trying to bring round. It has had to have a two mile trip from the farm in the back of a quad bike trailer, in rain and across a bumpy track, to reach our cottage for continued attention, as there is no farmhouse at Ballyhaugh. My partner recently spent a night in the shed, in a sleeping bag, trying to save another hypothermic calf.

Regards

Juliet Conway

Google

2016 2017 2018 2019 2020 2021 2022 2023

Jan Feb Mar Apr May Jun Jul Aug Sep Oct Nov Dec

43 42 45 44 48 53 57 58 57 54 50 46

42 42 45 44 47 53 57 58 57 54 50 46

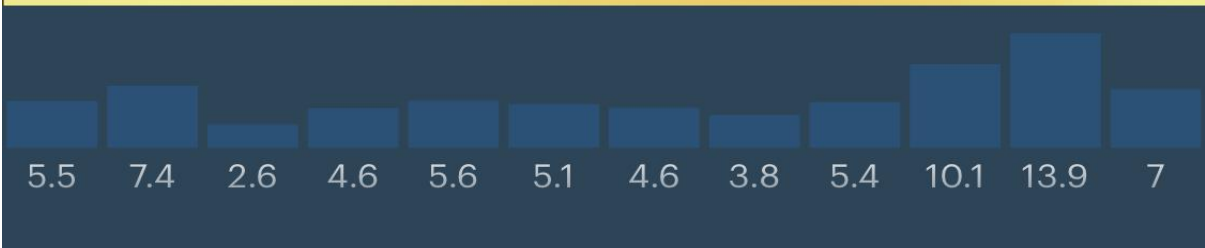

Google

2016 2017 2018 2019 2020 2021 2022 2023

Jan Feb Mar Apr May Jun Jul Aug Sep Oct Nov Dec

47	44	46	47	51	54	56	57	58	54	52	45
47	45	45	47	51	54	56	57	57	54	52	45

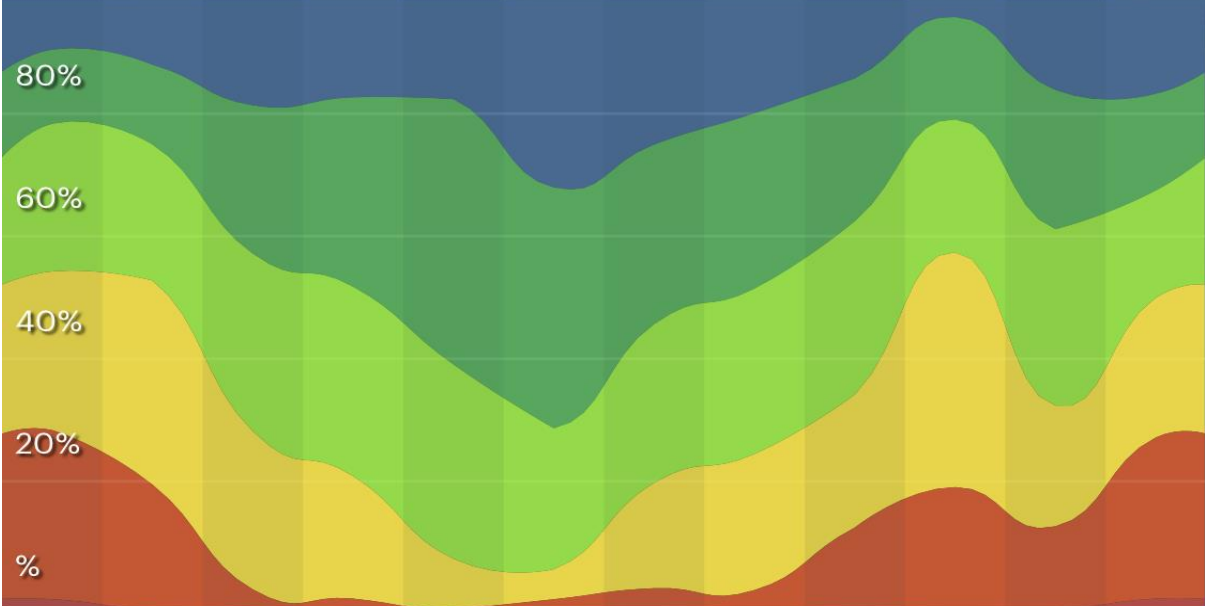

Google

2016 2017 2018 2019 2020 2021 2022 2023

Jan Feb Mar Apr May Jun Jul Aug Sep Oct Nov Dec

46	46	44	47	51	58	57	58	58	53	49	46
46	47	44	47	51	57	57	58	58	53	49	46

Hole 3
56.6297N. - 6.61038W

Area considered for development in local plan.

Please find attached a photo of a calf that we had in our kitchen overnight (taken by quad from Ballyhaugh). Sadly, it died. I was attempting to confirm, in frustration, the essence of our case - a farm with no farmhouse and issues therefore....

