

Having submitted my clients' papers according to your deadline, and having studied those submitted on behalf of the Director of Planning, I am advised that his photo no 6 is perceived to be inaccurate--the northernmost plot at Achanadriane is shown up at the top of the field which is defined by the dyke--whereas it is central and to the south of the field, near the burn; in addition, the other plot is actually more obscure and further to the south, nearer to the burn and trees.

In short the photograph shows the positions of both plots inaccurately.
