Integrated Children and Young People’s Service Plan
2014-2017
Welcome

Argyll and Bute Community Planning Partnership is committed to improving the lives and life chances of all our children and young people. As one of the key priorities of our Single Outcome Agreement, we want the rights and views of children and young people to influence and shape the development and delivery of services in Argyll and Bute.

Working together to achieve the best for children, young people and families this plan sets the direction and identifies the actions that all partners have committed to deliver in order to ensure that children and young people living in Argyll and Bute get the best possible start in life.

Introduction

Argyll and Bute’s vision commits partners across Argyll and Bute to “Working together to achieve the best for children, young people and families”. In order to achieve this vision we have agreed to frame our new Integrated Children and Young People’s Services Plan 2014/17 within the Getting It Right for Every Child framework and the well-being indicators. Effectively this ensures that we link the outcomes set out in the plan with the local Single Outcome Agreement (SOA) and the relevant National Performance Framework (NPF).

This means that the partnership will focus on ensuring that:

- Our children and young people have the best start in life to enable them to become
  - successful learners
  - confident individuals
  - effective contributors and
  - responsible citizens
- And that we continue to improve the life chances for children, young people and families at risk.

1.0 The Community Planning Partnership Area and the Context for Services for Children and Young People

Covering a land area of 690,899 hectares Argyll and Bute is the second largest local authority by area in Scotland after Highland (Census 2001). Argyll and Bute has the third sparsest population (averaging just 13 persons per square kilometre) of Scotland’s 32 local authorities (Census 2001, 2011) and has more inhabited islands than any other Scottish local authority (Census 2001). Approximately 17.4% of Argyll and Bute’s population live on islands (Census 2001).

The geography and population distribution of Argyll and Bute presents particular challenges when delivering services. These services are directed through four main areas:

- Helensburgh and Lomond
- Mid Argyll, Kintyre and Islay
- Oban, Lorn and the Isles
- Bute and Cowal

One in five of the population (20.4%) is aged between 0 and 19 years (NRS 2011-based Mid-Year Estimates; see table 1).

The plan for 2014/17 focuses on activity undertaken by partners in relation to addressing the “Whole System” by using resources more efficiently, creating a more streamlined joint plan for improvement and a suite of performance indicators which deliver real outcomes.

The Scottish Government’s Early Years Framework (2008) and Early Years Taskforce Shared Vision (March 2012) clearly articulate how agencies need to prioritise investment in prevention and early intervention, particularly focusing on children’s early experiences.

The Christie Commission on the Future Delivery of Public Services places emphasis on the importance of moving towards prevention and reinvesting monies from high end services. Set against a backdrop of reducing public sector funding, the next three years present unique challenges and opportunities to look at how we can work differently, reducing duplication and encouraging innovation.

Partners are committed to managing the shift towards prevention and the current development of Getting it Right for Every Child (GIRFEC) and Early Years’ Service has created a base from which further work can be taken forward.

The Children and Young People (Scotland) Bill places significant requirements on partners to deliver services differently, an example of which is the “600 hours” of early learning and child care commitment for every child, to be implemented in 2015.

Alongside this is the development of the new Kinship Order, Children’s Hearing System and Health and Social Care integration, which will bring health and social work services closer together to deliver on outcomes for children, young people and their families.

Particular strengths that are making a difference to children, young people and families

- Positive Early Years HMIE and Care Inspectorate Inspections indicating improving standards of Early Learning and Childcare.
- The development of Early Years Service to provide an integrated approach to Early Learning and Childcare and working successfully with partners.
- Effective targeting of teacher input to vulnerable 3 and 4 year olds.
- Early intervention through the implementation of GIRFEC to ensure every child gets the help they need timeously.
- Improved transitions planning for children with disabilities and increased partnership working with stakeholders.
- Review support arrangements for all kinship carers of Looked After Children.
- Reduce the numbers of young people in external residential placements.
- Implementation of Viewpoint and enhanced advocacy to ensure vulnerable children and young people’s views are represented.
- Develop consultation framework for all children and young people in Argyll and Bute.

2.1

Examples of good practice and future priorities

NHS Highland has delivered a number of initiatives around smoking prevention, dental hygiene, sexual health and alcohol and drugs awareness. Alongside this, Police Scotland provide input to students on drugs awareness, personal safety and internet safety.

In addition, Police Scotland also offer work experience placements to secondary school pupils to provide them with an insight into policing and, as part of this, participants are given access to divisional departments including CID, Community Safety, Community Policing and the Control Rooms. In relation to community fire safety, sessions are delivered in primary schools with road and cycle safety continuing to be a priority throughout all schools across Argyll and Bute.

Active Schools offer a wide range of extra-curricular and community sports programmes. An example of this is the partnership between Early Years, Active Schools and Football Development in the Dunoon area with mini kickers coach education, equipment, resources and support. They support the development of additional physical activity programmes within the curriculum and providing young people with training and coaching experience.

Priorities for 2013/14 include:

- Delivering targeted training for lead professionals and extending GIRFEC workshops.
- Establish GIRFEC ‘locality’ champions to support staff and further embed the GIRFEC process.
- Developing childcare services to support implementation of “600 hour” preschool for three and four year olds in 2014.
- Extending Early and Effective Intervention (EEI) to young children and those young people reported missing to the Police.
- Implement quality assurance and auditing arrangements across services to improve outcomes for children and young people.
- Implement improved governance arrangements linking Argyll and Bute to CPP.

In relation to education, the development and implementation of the new risk management system across all secondary school pupils will allow for the early identification of young people at risk of disengaging and those at risk of not making a positive move from school to the workplace.

This is supported by the recent pilot of new corporate parenting responsibilities within social work, ensuring that ALL young people who wish to experience the world of work are offered the opportunity of a work placement with the local authority. Once the pilot has been evaluated the offer will then be rolled out to include other community planning partners.
3.0 How well are the lives of children and young people improving?

3.1 Providing help at an early stage

Argyll and Bute has developed and grown the Bookbug Early Years Programme over the last 5 years in partnership with colleagues from Health, Library Services, Creative Arts in Schools Team (CAST), Community Learning and Development, and the Third Sector. Key achievements include significant increase in the number of Bookbug Sessions we deliver, ensuring that children’s literacy is improved by helping them to be ready for school. In addition, Argyll and Bute is using these sessions to target the delivery of “Bookbug Antenatal Pilot and Assertive Outreach”.

In conjunction with the Bookbug and with colleagues from Health, Library Services, Creative Arts in Schools Team (CAST), Community Learning and Development, and the Third Sector.

Considerable work has been undertaken in developing the Early Level of Curriculum for Excellence
4.0 How well are services working together to improve the lives of children, young people and families?

4.1 Planning and improving services

Argyll and Bute established a single point of contact for all child protection concerns. Information on children at risk has been systematically shared with Police and markers are used to ensure that officers attending an address are fully aware of potential concerns.

Child protection referrals and information sharing is being extended to children living in the same household as violent offenders and persons involved in supply and use of Class A drugs. This includes arrangements for sharing information with education, during school holidays.

The partnership wide pre-birth assessment pathway, Getting it Right Ante-Natally (GIRAN), ensures that vulnerable pregnancies are assessed and that additional supports are arranged as appropriate. In addition, this group meets in all areas. Integrated risk assessments are in place for all looked after children (LAC) and children on the child protection register, with the formation of a formal debrief designed for improved multi-agency practice learning.

GIRAN ensures that vulnerable pregnancies are assessed and that additional supports are arranged as appropriate.

4.2 Participation of children, young people, families and other stakeholders

In Argyll and Bute we actively work to ensure that children and young people’s voices are at the heart of everything we do.

A significant number of consultations have taken place across Argyll and Bute and the Community Planning Partnership and have recognised the importance and benefits of involving children and young people in Community Planning. At a practical level the partnership has implemented a recommendation to include “Youth Matters” as a regular standing item on the agenda of all Area Community Planning Groups, with a standing invite for all the chairs of the local youth forums to attend these meetings.

With regards to direct consultation with children, young people and their families, the “Taking a Closer Look” consultation examined the experiences of families, exploring their experiences of services following their de-registration from the Child Protection Register.

The further development of this consultation process is planned over the next year, involving input from the Third Sector in relation to gathering the “Voices of Children,” and the on-going support to children and their families through advocacy. Argyll and Bute Child Protection Advocacy Service, provided and delivered by Children 1st, has noted positive feedback from both young people and staff. Who Cares Scotland provide independent advocacy services to children looked after and support young people who are or have been in care. Advocates work with children and young people on a voluntary basis with the consent of their parent/carer. All children and young people have an individual work plan with outcomes set to support this work.

Some of the views captured from young people’s experience of the service were:

- “It was good to have somebody to tell my stories too”
- “It allowed me to express myself”
- “I now know how meetings work”
- “An advocate is someone you can talk to about anything that is worrying you”

Views of staff were:

- “The methods used by the advocate are very gentle and I feel that they can be used by very young children. The report was exactly what we were looking for and even better because these were the words of the child”
- “It has been extremely useful to have the young person’s views. The reports are great and I have been really pleased with the work Children 1st has done with the family”

The further development of this consultation process is planned over the next year.
4.3 Quality assurance

In order to ensure that service quality remains paramount for children, young people and their families, it is acknowledged that more work is required to ensure that all practitioners are involved directly with policy development. In relation to current performance management scorecards, there will be work done throughout 2013/14 to link and support quality improvement across agencies. It is a priority for the partnership to make sure that integrated quality assurance is seen as the “golden thread” which links activity with real and improved outcomes. Supporting this work is the outcomes of the Education Service Validated Self-Evaluation (VSE) across the four themes of:

- The performance and impact of Opportunities for All focusing on curriculum flexibility, skills for learning life and work and 16+ Learning Choices.
- The impact of strategies to ensure the effective acquisition and retention of literacy skills from the early level to the second level in preparation for the coordination of a cohesive approach to literacy within Argyll and Bute.
- The performance and impact of an integrated Early Years’ Service in terms of creating a positive start for children and their families.
- The Education Service’s work to strengthen its approach to reviewing the quality of education provided by its schools.

These outcomes were considered to be of high quality by the Education Scotland team.

For young people the Youth Services has developed practical local engagement with secondary schools, including the provision of Youth Worker and Youth drop-ins for young people to discuss health issues either in a group or one to one basis.

In relation to the recent Joint Inspection of Children and Families Services a number of key areas were identified in which the quality of work across the partnership is beginning to make a difference in the lives of children and young people across Argyll and Bute. The inspection highlighted a number of strengths which included:

- The strong commitment to prevention and early intervention.
- A very positive culture of partnership working at all levels.
- The flexible approach to working with families to improve outcomes for children and young people.
- Sound work to promote strong and resilient children, young people and families.

It is also gratifying that inspectors also highlighted three areas of good practice which are:

- Getting it Right Antenatal, our interagency approach to identifying and supporting vulnerable pregnant women, this approach is having a significant impact on giving unborn babies the best start in life.
- Early intervention service known as Billy’s Project. This service provides high quality intensive support to vulnerable children and young people.
- Nurse coordinators – working to support children in care, families affected by homelessness and Gypsy traveller families.

It is also clear from the joint inspection that there are still some real challenges for the partnership with further progress required in a number of areas, including the quality and consistency of our:

- Assessments of the needs of vulnerable children.
- Assessment and consistent response to children at risk.
- Planning to improve outcomes for children.

Over the period of 2015, the Community Planning Partners will be working with staff from across all agencies and services to:

- Secure further and continuous improvement in the quality of assessment of needs and plans for individual children.
- Implement the Integrated Children’s and Young People’s Services Plan.
- Continue to develop rigorous and systematic joint self-evaluation to improve outcomes for children and young people.
- Ensure continued leadership and direction is provided to implement the planned improvements for services for children, young people and families.
5.0
Assessing and responding to risks and needs

In relation to the assessment and management of risk, Argyll and Bute has sought to underpin service improvement using the Getting It Right for Every Child practice model.

An example of this work is the identification of and response to young people who are self-harming through guidance, training and partnership working. A short-life working group has been established to ensure that the Suicide and Self-Harming Protocol is being used consistently and that all children presenting with suicidal ideation or self-harming behaviour are seen by the Children and Adolescent Mental Health Services. Alongside this, the Abuse and Trauma Recovery Service has been jointly commissioned with Children 1st to improve access to specialist services, with Clinical Psychologists regularly consulting, and provide training resulting in staff feeling more confident in dealing with challenging behaviour.

Through and After Care Service provides a seamless support to care leavers, working closely with agencies which are facilitated by a central and local forums.

The model of service delivery is currently being reviewed and will be in place by 2015 to ensure a personalised approach for young people with creative solutions for young people living out with Argyll and Bute. Our young people have developed a Peer Mentoring Project, with wider community involvement in the form of a "SUPPORT Forum", to ensure that children and young people in care feel empowered and able to influence decision making.

The integration of social workers into the Argyll and Bute Addictions Team (ABAT) has provided specialist addiction social workers to support social service's child protection processes where substance misuse is involved.

Planning for individual children

Within Argyll and Bute there continues to be a strong commitment to the sustained implementation of the principles and practices of Getting It Right for Every Child to underpin our assessments and planning for children and young people.

As part of this every child and young person in Argyll and Bute has a "Named Person". The named person will work within universal services and usually be a health or education professional. These individuals are responsible for making sure that the child has the right help in place to support his or her development and well-being across the life stages (see table 2).

Where a child needs the involvement of two or more agencies working together to deliver services, a Lead Professional is appointed. They are responsible for co-ordinating multi-agency assessment planning to make sure that the different services provide a network of support in an appropriate and timely way.

The Lead Professionals is usually identified at a Child's Plan meeting as the person best placed to coordinate the support. When the child is looked after or there are child protection concerns, the Lead Professional will always be a qualified social worker. Children with significant additional needs are increasingly assessed using the Getting It Right for Every Child assessment framework and have an Interagency Child’s Plan which identifies clear outcomes and outlines how agencies will engage with the child and their family.

In order to maintain an individual child centred approach key measures have been put in place including:

- A reconfiguration of children’s service teams within Argyll and Bute Community Health Partnership will strengthen leadership, support and supervision for all staff working with children and young people.
- Midwives and Health Visitors (HVs) provide pre-conception care, breastfeeding support and advice, screening tests, immunisations and developmental reviews.
- Promoting early intervention in line with the key principles of GIRFEC.
- The Family Support and Parenting Strategy provides a framework for parenting ensuring a consistent approach across Argyll and Bute to measuring the impact of parenting programmes. Argyll and Bute is a pilot area for a psychological parenting programme.
- The web based Family Information Service has been improved to facilitate easier access to a wide range of information for parents/carers and other stakeholders. The Early Years Service uses social media to engage and inform families.

Additionally, a number of measures have been put in place to improve the Maternal and Infant Nutrition of families, including baby friendly accreditation which involves measures to support the increased number of women exclusively breastfeeding at 6 – 8 weeks. Alongside this "Bosom Buddy" groups also provide additional breastfeeding support and advice though volunteer peer supporters working in the community.

Strategies to help improve and promote child healthy weight have seen the development of a six week partnership programme delivering healthy eating and physical activity sessions in schools and early years establishments, as well as one to one and group sessions in the community.

In recognition of the need to ensure all children reach their developmental milestones by 30 months the 27 – 30 month review has been reintroduced.

Staff training, development and support

The Argyll and Bute Integrated Children’s Learning and Development Subgroup co-ordinates single and interagency child protection and integrated services training. The strategy for 2014-17 will ensure that all training meets national and local objectives in contributing to the protection and wellbeing of children and young people in Argyll and Bute.

Key objectives are:

1. Agree, prioritise and evaluate multi-agency training.
2. Ensure multi-agency training meets local and national needs.
3. Reflect on lessons learned from inspections and initial/significant case reviews.
4. Ensure that the training programme reflects and contributes to continuous improvements in service to protect and promote the wellbeing of children and young people and improve their outcomes.

7.1

Leadership of people

Argyll and Bute Children’s Group

The Argyll and Bute’s Children’s Group has overall responsibility for ensuring that the strategy for children’s services is coordinated and delivered. This group is also responsible for overseeing the implementation of the Integrated Children and Young People’s Service Plan. Overall it has responsibility for joint strategic planning of services for children, young people and families and membership is drawn from a wide range of partners. The work of the Argyll and Bute Children’s Group is supported by the five multi-agency executive groups responsible for ensuring that the outcomes contained within the plan are progressed and reported across the partners.

Executive Groups

The development of five Executive Groups reflects the commitment to ensure local needs are met within the plan. Four local executive groups across Argyll and Bute drive the plan at a local level and the Getting it Right For Every Child Implementation Group will drive changes across all services to promote the practice model. Working together Argyll and Bute will ensure that all children receive the help they need when they need it and the model is embedded within services.

The group comprises of senior managers with a role for developing and co-ordinating services and overseeing the implementation of the Integrated Children and Young People’s Service Plan.

Thematic Groups

There are seven identified thematic groups with a remit to address the key thematic milestones spanning early years to youth issues. The groups effectively support the work of the executive and practitioner forums and ensure that the needs of the particular groups of children and young people are represented across the Community Planning Partners.

Practitioner Forums

In 2008 the Argyll and Bute’s Children’s Group established seven Locality Children’s Service Groups across the Council area. There are seven practitioner forums in total. Front line practitioners will work together to ensure Argyll and Bute is delivering improved outcomes for our children, young people and their families. The groups will meet quarterly to take forward actions and can also meet locally to look at specific challenges surrounding service delivery and design.

The chair from practitioner’s forums will be members of the executive group.

Making improvements by evaluation

Argyll and Bute is currently working to improve and develop joint management information and performance reporting systems which will give greater clarity in relation to the delivery of outcomes through self-evaluation. Staff and pupils will work to develop a new vision for the Child Protection Committee and Argyll and Bute’s Children. As part of our improvement in staff and public communication a systematic upgrading of our website has taken place and Argyll and Bute is currently revising all of its service information leaflets.

In addition we have continued to extend our approaches to self-evaluation with a number of key areas identified as:

- Senior managers are visible and meet with staff and young people on a regular basis.
- Improve our initial response to concerns.
- Health is consistently involved in decision making regarding child protection.
- Simplified approaches to risk assessment.
- Briefing and debriefing process has given us an opportunity to accelerate multi-agency learning and disseminate good practice.
- Staff have a better understanding of their role in leading change.

In Argyll and Bute practice improvement and outcomes are delivered within a learning culture where partners, children and young people and their families remain central to this process.
The Early Years Framework was published in 2008, and moved to support local partnerships to ensure that children get the best start in life, have improved chances in life and support young people and families at risk. From this came the development of the Early Years Collaborative with the remit of accelerating the work around Getting It Right for Every Child (GIRFEC) and Early Years Framework.

The Early Years Collaborative uses teaching improvement science to make small scale changes which can be replicated on a larger scale to improve outcomes across early years.

Across the partners Argyll and Bute has established a working group to take forward the key national principles for children and young people within the context of Getting it Right for Every Child and Early Years Framework.

The four main work-stream drivers and national stretch aims identified at a national level are:

• To ensure that women experience positive pregnancies which result in the birth of more healthy babies as evidenced by a reduction of 15% in the rates of still births (from 4.9% per 1000 live births in 2010 to 4.3% per 1000 live births in 2015) and infant mortality (from 3.7% per 1000 live births to 3.1% per 1000 live births in 2015).

• To ensure that 85% of all children within each Community Planning Partnership have reached all of the expected developmental milestones at the time of the child’s 27-30 month health review by end of 2016.

• To ensure that 90% of all children within each Community Planning Partnership have reached all of the expected developmental milestones at the time the child starts primary school by the end on 2017.

The development of a series of small scale tests is underway across the partnership in relation to these stretch aims, an example of which is vitamin use to support healthy pregnancies. The testing is done using data from the Argyll and Bute locality and using the Plan, Do, Study, Act (PDSA) Model of reporting and analysing the effectiveness of small scale change.

Improving the wellbeing of children and young people

Argyll and Bute Community Health Partnership has initiated a reconfiguration of children’s service teams to ensure robust leadership, support and supervision for all staff working with children and young people. By the end of 2014 the Council’s Children and Families social work service will have been restructured to ensure the right staff are in the right place to deliver improved outcomes for vulnerable children, young people and their families.

The Family Support and Parenting Strategy ensure a more consistent approach across Argyll and Bute to measuring the impact of parenting programmes and alongside this the web based Family Information Service has been improved to facilitate easier access for parents/carers and other stakeholders.

Working together
Argyll and Bute will ensure that all children receive the help they need when they need it

The Getting it Right For Every Child Implementation Plan key objectives are:

• Universal Services (Health and Education) focused on embedding Named Person and Lead Professional Roles ensuring children and young people’s needs are addressed in the most proportionate and timely manner by arranging Child’s Plan meetings.

• The implementation of the National Getting it Right for Every Child practice model by all agencies for assessment and planning children’s needs.

• Further develop the pre-birth pathway and antenatal plan for vulnerable babies.

• Social Work prioritises the development of revised approaches to risk assessment and risk management in child protection and for Looked After and Accommodated Children based upon the national assessment framework.

• Police prioritise improving responses to domestic abuse and the establishment of Early and Effective Intervention project.

• To improve governance and support for the implementation of Getting it Right for Every Child by reviewing integrated children’s services planning arrangements.

• Implementing a Getting it Right for Every Child based approach to identifying additional support needs of pre-school children.

• In Argyll and Bute we will take maximum advantage of our learning culture, where we learn from things we could have done better and things we have done well.

8.1

Early years collaborative

The Early Years Collaborative uses teaching improvement science to make small scale changes which can be replicated on a larger scale to improve outcomes across early years.

Across the partners Argyll and Bute has established a working group to take forward the key national principles for children and young people within the context of Getting it Right for Every Child and Early Years Framework. • To ensure that 85% of all children within each Community Planning Partnership have reached all of the expected developmental milestones at the time of the child’s 27-30 month health review by end of 2016.

• To ensure that 90% of all children within each Community Planning Partnership have reached all of the expected developmental milestones at the time the child starts primary school by the end on 2017.

The development of a series of small scale tests is underway across the partnership in relation to these stretch aims, an example of which is vitamin use to support healthy pregnancies. 9.0 Outcomes and activities

This section of the plan maps out clearly the outcomes for the Community Planning Partners in relation to improving the life chances, health, safety and wellbeing of children, young people and their families across Argyll and Bute.

The plan covers the period 2014-17 and uses the SHANNARI format to address key wellbeing indicators.

- Safe
  - All our children and young people should be protected from abuse, neglect and harm.
